Hello,

I work with a bank over here. A late customer left funds without a beneficiary, but the database shows she stated that the funds should be used for charity. What senior staff of the bank do in a situation like this is to get an acquaintance to inherit the money on their behalf. Instead of calling the attention of bank officials to this one, I have decided to contact you instead and fill you as the beneficiary so the bank will release it to you, then we can split it and use it for charity.

This is a legitimate transaction. If you're interested then write to (char9lemleb@yahoo.com)so we can iron out the details.

Thank you,

Charles
